

LINCOLN BANQUET SATURDAY NIGHT

DREW GOOD SIZED CROWD—HEARD SEVERAL FINE SPEECHES.

Over a hundred persons attended the second annual banquet given Saturday night at the Masonic temple by the Lincoln Republican club. Rev. Dunning Idle, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, was the toastmaster. The principal speaker of the evening was Attorney Wm. Brown, of Detroit, who gave an interesting talk on "Lincoln."

He said: "Lincoln was the greatest emancipator since the Christ child was born. He endeared himself to all by his great character and kindly heart. It is men like him who have made history. Lincoln was a visionary, and he was also a man who thought for himself. He was always willing to take advice, yet his own mind was the court of last resort once he convinced himself he was right. He was a product of those rugged days and yet had been born in any other period he would have succeeded. Lincoln knew that behind slavery was a greater issue, the saving of the nation. He was unschooled but not uneducated. Today we see a united country as a result of what Lincoln did. It is tragic that we have not a Lincoln in these troublesome times. If the present Republican congress does not do something soon and quit playing politics the job will be turned over to the Democrats and all of the Lincoln clubs in the United States cannot stop it. Congress should take the brake off of business. The public is at last awake and realize that the income tax is being paid by them in high prices. Most of the rich men have gone out of business and have their money invested in tax-exempt bonds. This must be corrected. The tariff question today is the paramount issue. The foreign markets will not be open until congress decides where it is at on the question."

Mrs. E. L. Calkins, prominent W. C. T. U. worker, also spoke. She said: "I do not believe the world is going to the bow wows. We are much better than people were in the days of our grandfathers. In those days they had slavery, lotteries and wife beating. It is not so today. The Republicans of Michigan are fading terrible responsibilities. All the world is watching Michigan. We are proud of some things that Michigan has done, but there are some things Michigan cannot be proud of. The women of Michigan are going to demand clean politics. We want men for office who keep their word."

Attorney Wm. Laird, of Ann Arbor, spoke and stated that the women can help enforce the liquor laws. The present sheriff's force, he stated, was inadequate to cope with the situation by reason of the fact that they had not enough men. There were three deaths in Washtenaw county last month from bad liquor.

Mr. Loveland, secretary of the Washtenaw Farm bureau, gave a brief talk, describing his feelings when he visited the birthplace of Lincoln.

The banquet was served by the ladies of the Eastern Star and was all that could be desired. Everyone had plenty to eat, and the ladies came in for much praise at the hands of the speakers.

A colored quartet sang several songs. Harvey Ferguson, chairman of the by-laws committee, recommended that the affairs of the club be conducted by an executive committee of six persons, and S. E. Crawford, chairman of the meeting, asked for names. The following were suggested by members of the club to act on the committee: Wm. Johnson, R. J. Bird, Mrs. Perry Townsend, Mrs. Wm. Derbyshire, S. E. Crawford and Mrs. Wm. Johnson.

The meeting then adjourned.

200 ATTEND BIG SCHOOL BANQUET

FATHER AND SON BANQUET—BIG SUCCESS WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

The father-son banquet held Wednesday night at the Prospect school was an unqualified success in every particular. Two hundred fathers and sons sat down and sang and ate together. "Rube" Stockdale, aged 82 years, was the oldest father present and Bennet Stadtmiller, aged three years, was the youngest son present. Dr. E. S. George was chairman of the meeting. Rev. Hugo Penker asked the blessing. Olin C. Eckley led in the singing and Martin Newman was yell master. Joe White and Henry Kling, both lads, played violin solos. The Prospect school orchestra, led by Archie Muthews, furnished instrumental music.

Supt. A. G. Eerickson gave a splendid talk and told of a meeting in the high school by the Holstein-Friesian cattle dealers and a critic teacher, passing by the door, thinking it was a parent-teacher's meeting, remarked: "How lovely that the fathers take such an interest in their children." He also advocated the building of a new gymnasium for the "dads," telling the boys it would add five years to their lives.

Judge Edward J. Jeffries, of Detroit, gave the principal address of the evening. He said:

"Our forefathers were much concerned in making this country a safe place in which to live. We must see to it that it is also a decent place in which to live and that people will be safe outside the sanctuary of the church. A new philosophy of life is dawning when competition will be changed to emulation. The new philosophy is looking you fellow man straight in the eye. This world was made for man. We must not have the path of life too narrow and hard. It must be so wide that those who travel it will not fall off. The reason so many fall from the path of life is because it is too narrow. We must give our children the best of education, so that if it is every one for himself and the devil take the hindmost, our children will not be lost."

COUNTY BEEKEEPER'S SCHOOL FEB. 20-21

Through the co-operation of the extension specialists in apiculture of the Michigan Agricultural college arrangements have been made for holding a two-day county beekeepers' school in Washtenaw county on Feb. 20 and 21.

Forenoon and afternoon sessions will be held in the supervisors' room, courthouse, Ann Arbor, at 10 a. m. and 10 p. m. each day.

Charts, lantern slides and moving pictures will be shown in connection with the school to illustrate the different phases and problems in beekeeping.

WOMAN'S CLUB IN MOTHER-DAUGHTER DAY

It was mothers' and daughters' day at the Ypsilanti Woman's club Wednesday afternoon in the Literary clubhouse. Ages of the daughters ranged from three years to up in the twenties. A peanut and candy hunt opened the entertainment, and then Miss Elsie Eichorn led in a series of fun-making games which the mothers seemed to enjoy fully as well as their daughters.

Miss Alice Breining gave a solo dance, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Charles Breining, at the piano. Refreshments of ice cream and home-made cup cakes were served. The hostesses were Mrs. Alex. Boutell, Mrs. Roy Curtis, Mrs. Louise Welter, Mrs. E. B. Kellogg and Mrs. George Moorman.

At the business meeting the club voted to co-operate with the D. A. R. in the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the settlement of Washtenaw county.

WAGON RUNS OVER FOOT.

Judge Sample Tells the Rotarians of his Work

At the Rotarian luncheon Monday noon Judge Sample was the speaker and told of the important phases of court work in this county and the care of the unfortunate children. He said that there were usually between 450 and 480 of these unfortunate under the supervision of the court, caused by desertion of one or both of the parents, where parents had been sent to prison for crimes committed. One case he cited where a mother of 11 children had left her home and could not be persuaded to return; that the children left in the care of the father ranged in age from less than one year to 16; that this woman since leaving home has given birth to an illegitimate child. He said that this was an exceptional case, as it was generally the father who did the deserting.

He told of another phase of court work, that of citizenship, and said that there were 600 before him for citizenship; that to aid this work a night school had been established in Ann Arbor, told of a German, 72 years of age, a grandfather of 11 children, who is attending this school in order that he may master the English language sufficiently to become a citizen before his death.

Ray Hbrto was taken into membership from the Miami club and gave an interesting talk on Camp Grant and Hog Island, which were laid out under his direction.

Next Monday will be the anniversary meeting.

GOVERNOR BACKS GOOD ROADS PROGRAM, 1932

In a speech before the state and county engineers' meeting at Ann Arbor Tuesday evening Governor Alex. J. Groesbeck pledged his support to the 1932 road building program for Michigan and backed the administrative board, which was formed after his administration came into power.

That sound good to us, governor, and we in Washtenaw county are with you on the good roads proposition, if not on some of the tax questions your administration is responsible for.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF FALSE PRETENSE

A. W. Smith was arraigned Tuesday before Justice Stadtmiller on a charge of obtaining $15 under false pretense from one of our local merchants on a real estate deal. Smith, who had been taken to the county jail, was allowed to go home Monday evening to Chelsea with the understanding that he would appear next morning in court here. He appeared and gave bail as required by the prosecuting attorney in the sum of $2,000.

Several other men say that Smith has failed to give them deeds for their property. Smith says that he had a little hard luck and that he will take care of every person who bought any lots from him. He pleaded not guilty to the charge and his trial was set for March 1.

KATCHA-KOO PLAYS TO PLEASSED AUDIENCE

Monday and Tuesday nights of this week "Katcha-Koo," a musical comedy presented at the Wuerth theatre by local talent, directed by Miss Jeanne Wiley and Marian Biddle, under the auspices of the Signal Corps Auxiliary, was a decided success. Both the acting and stage settings were fine and reflect great credit on all those who took part. For the lack of space we cannot give the program or make special mention of the different characters. It was good from the time the curtain rose on the first act till the close, and those who saw it were loud in their praise of Ypsilanti talent. "Just like old timers," we heard one party say.

Bird and Luman Seaman were chosen delegates to represent the association at a meeting to be held in Ann Arbor next Monday, Feb. 20, for the purpose of combating tuberculosis in cattle.

Several good talks were made along the line of breeding high grade cattle and a letter was read from Wm. P. Hatch. The meeting was lively from start to finish and many good stories were told on each other by the members. Jay Bird and the retiring president, John Bazley, took a few shots at each other.

At 8 o'clock a banquet was served by the students from the domestic science department, at which about 50 were served.

In Ypsilanti township it is grown on 47 farms and in Manchester township there are 39 farms with alfalfa. LADIES GUESTS KIWANIS CLUB

BANQUET HELD AT COUNTRY CLUB—UPWARDS OF 200 IN ATTENDANCE.

The Kiwanis club ladies' night was a great success in every way. Two hundred Kiwanians, their ladies and guests sat down at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening to a banquet at the Country club. The clubroom was tastefully decorated with valentines and the favors were valentines. President M. G. Day stated that at the last ladies' night the ladies told of the faults of their husbands, and that he would now give the men a chance to get even. When he saw several ladies turn pale he relented, and stated that it would be voluntarily and no one would be fined who did not dare tell.

Here are some of the faults that were given by the following Kiwanians: H. B. Britton, "She has a fatal sense of humor." F. E. Daggett, "What's the use of making more trouble?" Guy C. Kennedy, "She snores in her sleep." Henry M. Frain, "I dare not tell—my wife is beside me." E. S. George, "While present," Joe Thompson, "There is a minister present." Prof. N. A. Harvey arose, put his hand over his mouth, looked at his wife and sat down. A majority of the Kiwanians, timid fellows, arose, looked at their wives and answered here and sat down, completely cowed. Rev. C. S. Bury answered, "She's such a good housekeeper she neglects her husband." A. J. Nulan said, "I pay her the same compliment she paid me—no fault."

Judge Alfred J. Murphy, formerly of the Wayne county circuit court, was the speaker of the evening and gave a masterful address. He was introduced by Prof. E. A. Lyman, who was instrumental in securing him as a speaker. Judge Murphy said: "It is a distinct pleasure for me to meet with you. The Kiwanis club and similar clubs stand for all that is good, clean and best in a community. In the old days war was considered a test of strategy against strategy, brawn against brawn, but in the last war all home was lost sight of and non-combatants, women and children were slaughtered. I am glad that our president had the courage to call the disarmament meeting and hope that the Kiwanis club will take a stand and help to secure ratification of the treaties made. You live in a great educational center here and your city atmosphere is far more cultural than in Detroit, where 45 different kinds of blood are trying to become American citizens. We need to teach our boys and girls the value of an education. In the olden days parents thought it sufficient if their children went through a grammar or high school. A nation's existence depends upon the intelligence and integrity of its people and we must see to it that our schools are supported and kept in the front."

He said that recently an aged lady who had been a taxpayer here all of her life was refused admission in the local hospital and that she had to be taken to Ann Arbor with pneumonia, where she died. He also told of other cases and related of an accident where the man was injured at 2 a. m. and could not be taken to the hospital at Ann Arbor until daylight the same morning. All of this time he was suffering intense pain and died shortly after he reached Ann Arbor. A committee consisting of Superintendent A. G. Erickson, Dr. H. B. Britton and Mrs. D. L. Quirk was appointed to look into the matter and report at the next meeting.

The man of business whose tasks are made shorter and easier with modern devices should be the first to advocate similar efficiency in his household. In particular should he approve a home labor-saver that eliminates the injurious drudgery of sweeping and dusting and one that repeatedly repays its cost, as does The Hoover. For this efficient cleaner ends carpet-cleaning expense, increases the efficiency of help and effects other tangible savings. Chief among these is the added life it imparts to floor coverings by gently beating out all nap-wearing, embedded grit as it electrically sweeps up all clinging litter, erects matted nap, brightens colors and suction cleans. Only The Hoover does all this. Hoover-cleaned homes are the standard for cleanliness and healthfulness, so let your next investment be a Hoover.

DENTON

Mrs. Ida M. Wills, of Seattle, has attempted to prove before Judge Fred S. Lamb, of Cadillac, sitting in Wayne circuit court, that she is the adopted daughter of the late Wm. Roach, of Denton, and therefore entitled to a share in his 7,500 estate. The will leaves $1,000 each to John Roach, a brother, and two sisters, and the remainder to John Gerrick, the husband of a niece of the testator. Mrs. Wills says she was adopted by Roach soon after her birth, in 1862, and that she left the Roach home while young because of disagreements with Mrs. Roach. The heirs deny Mrs. Wills' adoption, which she cannot prove. The will was sustained.

FAMOUS DUTCH CELLIST
IN FOURTH CONCERT

Hans Kindler, the world-famous Dutch cellist who will appear as soloist with the Detroit Symphony orchestra at their fourth Ann Arbor concert Monday evening, Feb. 20, has won indisputable rank with that small galaxy of stars who stand at the pinnacle of the musical profession. A dazzling technique, a warm, rich tone glowing with color, a poetic insight, and infinite variety of expression are outstanding characteristics of Kindler's art. Added to his superb musical equipment is a personality of rare charm, which captivates his audience before he plays a single note.

As is the case with so many musicians who have achieved especial distinction, Hans Kindler comes of a musical family. Both his parents were musicians, his mother being an accomplished pianist. He was born in Rotterdam in 1892. Famous musicians, among them Basoni, Wirth, of the Joachim quartet, and Willeke, then a student, were frequent visitors at the Kindler home, where they often participated in the music making. It was there that Kindler got his first enthusiasm for music, especially the cello.

When not quite eight years old he began the study of the piano and cello, winning first prize for both at the Rotterdam conservatory at the age of 13. His first public appearance occurred when he was 17, and after finishing his classical studies at the gymnasium in the cities of Holland. When he was 17 years old he made his debut in Berlin, under the baton of Kenwald, being received with the greatest enthusiasm. Engagements with the principal orchestras followed and appearances were made in Holland, Germany and England, under the direction of such famous conductors as Hengelberg, Kenwald, Landon, Ronald, and Schonberg. When he was only 18 years old he was engaged as professor at the famous Scharwenka conservatory in Berlin. He also made concert tours with Julia Culp and Xavier Scharwenka, and in company with these noted artists was commanded to appear before the queen of Holland.

HISTORIC CABIN SHOWN IN "TOL'ABLE DAVID"

When "Tol'able David," which Associated First National Pictures, Inc. is releasing as Richard Barthelmess' first stirring vehicle, appears on the screen northwesterners for the first time will see one of the most famous historic spots of the Civil war. It is Mosby's cabin in which the famous Confederate guerrilla leader took refuge after the battle of Winchester. The story is picturesquely told in the famous poem of "Sheridan Twenty Miles Away."

Tradition in the Virginia mountains to this day insists that any man desiring to escape cannot be captured in this territory. Union soldiers hot on the trail of Mosby came to the cabin where he had paused for a bite to eat. Without hesitation he climbed into the chimney. Searching the place they failed to find him, as the hot chimney seemed inaccessible to them as a hiding place.

Daniel Boone, the famous pioneer of Kentucky, is also credited with having stopped at the cabin, "D Boone" being carved in aged, worn letters on a log. The cabin is 150 years old.

The pastor of Friends church brought a splendid message to his people Sunday morning. Come and hear him.

WINTER LAUNDRY WORK.

It is in hanging out the clothes in cold weather that heavy colds are often taken. The change of temperature from the warm kitchen to the freezing air outside is most dangerous. No one should hang out clothes without being especially dressed for it. When there is a large family and consequently many stockings and undergarments it is sometimes expedient to have a separate day for their washing, and the regular laundry work is much easier when these are out of the way. A still, frosty night does not hurt clothes but tends to whiten the fabric. Never take the hands out of hot suds and go out to the clothesline without first giving them a sour bath, either of lemon juice or vinegar; the latter is generally handier, and just as good as lemon juice. Both are whitening, softening and corrective of the alkali with which strong soap is heavily charged. It is much better to use a cotton clothesline and take it in every time you do the clothes, as wire clotheslines wear the clothes and in winter freeze to them so that they are easily torn. It is an invaluable help to have a good soap solution all ready for wash day, and one of the best is made by dissolving enough borax soap chips in hot water to make a thick solution, and a very little of this stirred in hot water making a nice soft lather that is excellent for washing the knit underwear, stockings and all yarn things. All blankets and garments of outing flannel are kept soft and of good color by washing through this suds and it is especially good for all the nice soft covers and wraps and garments used for young children. The soap chip suds is much used for washing the white stockings worn so much by children, and by putting them to soak for several hours before washing they are easily washed clean and kept a clear white. When washing knitted or crocheted articles such as caps, sweaters and cloves, squeeze the rinsing water out, put the article on a clean, large latter and place near the fire to dry and keep turning and pulling into shape until perfectly dry. The temperature of the water in which all woolen things are washed and rinsed and of the place in which they are dried should be practically the same, as it is change of temperature that shrinks woolen goods.
A handful of salt in the rinsing water will keep the clothes from freezing while you are hanging them on the line.

the large crowd. The program, in charge of the ladies, was in the nature of a Lincoln tribute, and the house was very tastefully decorated with the national colors. Music was furnished by Miss Irene Wilbur and brother, Lecky, and Kenneth Strang also gave a very pleasing violin solo, accompanied by Mrs. McFarlane on the piano. The collection amounted to a little over $40 and the penny drill brought in something like $2.50, which goes to the flower fund. The next meeting will be March 11 at Albert Staebler's.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Thumm, of Ypsilanti, were guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sweitzer, over the week-end.

We are sorry to know that Mrs. Claude Wright is ill with scarlet fever and hope she may recover soon.

Robert Clark returned Sunday from Beyer hospital and is feeling fine.

R. J. Bird was a business visitor in Detroit Monday.

Mrs. E. L. Strang entertained at dinner last Thursday for Mrs. Harry Morgan, Mrs. Arthur Mosher, Mrs. George McKim, Mrs. Gottlieb Sweitzer and Miss Margaret Alber.

James Downing, of Plymouth, visited his family on Sunday.

Fay Union was the guest Sunday of his friend, Gerald Hicks, in Detroit.

The tenant house on the John Bazley stock farm burned to the ground early Sunday morning. It is supposed to have caught fire from a spark from the chimney. Mr. Johnston, who occupied the house, lost nearly all his goods. This is the second farm house fire in that vicinity within the last few weeks. People better get busy and put their chimneys in shape or more may be left without homes—not a very pleasant thing during this cold weather.

Mrs. Saida Dixon, teacher in the Free Church school, gave a valentine box for the school and party for those of the pupils whose birthdays occur during the month of February, inviting in the mothers of those pupils. A peanut hunt was a very interesting feature of the occasion.

Miss Ruth Nollar, of Dearborn, who attends the Normal at Ypsilanti, was the guest of her brother, Fred, and family and all attended a party at Salem last week.

James Burrell, wife and son, of Cherry Hill, were Sunday evening visitors at Harry Morgan's.

Little Lois and Marian Walters, of Tuttle Hill, spent Saturday and Sunday with their aunt and uncle, Beryl and Carl Kuhl, while their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Walters, motored to Hudson to visit relatives.

Albert Nass and wife spent Tuesday evening at Russel Trowbridge's.

Mrs. Henry Priebe and son, Hiney, visited her father, who is past 90 years old, and her sisters in Detroit last Wednesday.

Mrs. Russel Trowbridge entertained last Wednesday for Mr. Trowbridge's father and mother and Mrs. Mary Ochs and daughter, Rosella, of Dearborn.

Miss Vera McFarlane was home from Detroit over the week-end.

Miss Laura Kraft returned Sunday from a two weeks' visit with her aunt, Mrs. Kenosky, of Wayne.

Frank Court and wife, of Ypsilanti, looked after the chores for their parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Court, Saturday and Sunday while they visited Mr. Court's father at Pontiac. They found him quite comfortable. They also visited her sister, Mrs. J. H. Palmer, and husband at Redford.

Arthur Union and wife expect to attend the Eastern Star banquet in Ypsilanti on Tuesday evening, Feb. 14.

Kenneth and Gladys Strang and Irene Lewis, of Ypsilanti, were week-end guests of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Strang.

Mrs. Louise Crippen, who has been confined to her bed with a severe attack of bronchitis, is again able to be about the house.

Fred Nollar and family were Sunday evening callers at the Kuhl home.

Luis J. Kuhl and wife returned Monday evening from Union City, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Mastin since Thursday. On Friday they attended a farm bureau meeting at Sherwood and enjoyed it very much. Some very enthusiastic speakers were present and gave very interesting talks on soil fertility and alfalfa and what it will do for the farmer. Their talks were made much more interesting by the use of motion pictures. The banquet which followed was excellent. On Saturday they accompanied Mr. Mastin's people to a meeting of Union Grange and there enjoyed a splendid time and also the dinner. A fine program was also given. There they met with Mr. George W. Gaw and wife, who were formerly in the Savings bank in Ypsilanti. Older residents will probably remember them. His wife then Miss Smith, was also an employee of the bank. They wished Mr. Kuhl to present their compliments to their old friends and say that they were well and enjoying life. Mr. Gaw, who is a thorough business man, gave a very spirited address at the grange meeting about the farmer bloc in congress, saying that we as farmers must get behind our men there and push until we get the representation that we need. Mr. Kuhl was requested to give a short talk on the farm bureau situation here in Ypsilanti, which was much appreciated by those in the same work there.

Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Trowbridge, of Dearborn, and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Harrison, of Inkster, came Saturday and stayed over Sunday to help little Eleanor Trowbridge celebrate her ten's birthday, Sunday, Feb. 12. All enjoyed a very fine time.

Constance Etchison was brought home Sunday morning from Dr. Dickerson's in Ypsilanti, where she has been the past two weeks, ill with pneumonia. She is doing nicely now.

The Free Church L. A. S. is planning a George Washington social for Friday evening, Feb. 24 at the E. L. Strang home. Old time costumes with a colonial supper feature the party. Don't forge the date and place.

Some rather inquisitive parties who are hanging around this part of the country may get treated to something a little more severe than a dozen of beans if they do not cease to annoy people. They have been heard and seen by several, and one house was entered during the night last week.

Mrs. Albert Nass and daughter, Marie, attended the prayer meeting at Mr. Rice's last Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Michaels entertained their children, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Perry and Miss Catherine Michaels, of Detroit, Sunday.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of three installments of principal and one installment of interest for more than 30 days on mortgage bearing date Dec. 2, 1919, given by Russell L. Kline and Myrtle B. Kline to Bert Youngs, which mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Washtenaw County, State of Michigan, March 13, 1920, in Liber 149 of Mortgages, on page 204, which mortgage was duly assigned by Bert Youngs to E. and once been installed on one of the lower mine levels and had been hoisted out of the shaft ahead of the advancing water flood and put under shelter in a corner of the boiler shed. As I was passing my tin cup for more of Daddy's excellent coffee the rattle and clank of a pump began to make itself heard, together with the coughing chug-chug of the steam exhaust therefrom.

"That's that low-level pump!" I exclaimed. "They must have connected it up with the boiler."

Whoosh! that was just as far as I got. In the middle midst of the word "boilers" a two-inch jet of muddy water came curving up through one of the window openings to arch over and fall, splash, all over us as we sat munching our dinner. Everlastingly ruined the dinner, put out the fire, upset the coffee pot, and made drowned rats of both of us in less time than it takes to tell it—much less.

So much for that. Of course, we ran and ducked and dodged, like the drowned rats I speak of hunting for a hole. But now Bullerton's devilish engineering ingenuity came into play. By some means as yet unknown to us, he had contrived a movable nozzle to his squirt-gun, and in another minute there wasn't a single dry spot left in that shaft-house. I venture to say that Daddy and I and the dog ran a full mile trying to get out of range of that demoniacal sozzle-machine, but there wasn't a corner of the place that it couldn't, and didn't, reach.

During the night the scoundrels had laid a pipe line from the pump in the boiler shed alongside of our prison fortress; this with an upright extension on the business end of it. At the top of the sandpipe stem there was an elbow with a short joint of pipe screwed into it to point our way; and on the end of this nozzle there was a piece of rubber hose. Under the jerky impulses of the pump strokes this flexible extension of the nozzle flopped up and down and around and sideways, like the nose of a patent lawn sprinkler; and there you are—or there we were.

"Gosh-to-Solomon!" Daddy spluttered, "we ain't on the water wagon—we're spank inside of it! Are you rememberin', Stannie, that they can keep this gosh-dum thing up forever? All in the world, they've got to do is to put under 'em, I'd fix the fellow that's firing 'em!" I shivered; and then the bright idea was born. "Say, Daddy, we can stop it!" I yelled; and just then the water devil outside made another fiendish flop and got me squarely in the face.

But it didn't drown the bright idea.

CHAPTER XV.

High Explosives.

The idea was one which ought to have suggested itself much sooner. The steam supply pipe for driving the big centrifugals at the shaft-month came through the wall over our heads, and it was the sight of this pipe, steaming even on the outside of its thick insulating jacket of asbestos under the wetting from the water jet, that had set me thinking.

A spinning twirl of the engine throttle valve set our machinery in motion, and when I had thrown the pump clutch in, we crouched again in the least-wet corner to watch the index of the tell-tale steamgauge connected into the supply pipe.

We knew that the centrifugals were voracious steam-eaters; we had proved that when we were running them in the week-long test. I had a notion that maybe Bullerton had fired only one of the battery of three boilers to run his shower-bath machine, and the result speedily confirmed this assumption. In a few minutes the steam pressure had dropped to a point at which it would no longer drive any of the pumps, either ours or the one outside, and the window cataract stopped. "This will be only a breathing space," I prophesied, getting up to squeeze some of the superfluous water out of my clothes. "Bullerton will do one of two things: fire the other two boilers, or disconnect this steam pipe of ours."

"Reckon so?" said Daddy.

"You'll see in a minute or so."

The attack began even while we were speaking, sundry hammerings and twistings that shook the pipe overhead proving that the besiegers were going to stop the leak by cutting us off from the boilers.

"Take your whirl at the inventions, this time, Daddy!" I urged. "When they get this supply pipe cut out, we'll be in for another ducking—and one that we can't stop."

Daddy was shaking his head and wringing the moisture—and mud—out of his beard.

"Jerusalem-to-gosh, Stannie, we got to take a chance!" he muttered. "Anyways, I'd about as lief die as be drowned to death. We'll have to muss that blacksmith shop up and get it out o' the way, somehow. Gimme a match out o' that tin box o' your'n—if they ain't all soaked to a jiz-whizzlin' sop."

I found the matches, which, luckily, were still dry, and handed him one. Before I fairly realized what he was going to do, he had taken one of the dynamite cartridges out of its bucket hiding place and was splitting the fuse with his pocketknife.

"Open that door into the shop," he commanded; and when I obeyed mechanically, out went the bomb, fizzing and sputtering, to land in a heap of scrap iron piled on the farther side of the stone-built forge. The sight of it smoking and spitting sparks in the heap of scrap half hypnotized me, I guess, for I stood gaping at it, with the door held open, until Daddy Hiram jerked me away, slammed the door and yelled to me to help him bar it.

We had barely time to get the door closed and fastened with the heavy wooden bar and to throw ourselves flat on the floor behind the hoisting machinery before the crash came. As I have previously said, the blacksmith shop was a rather flimsy, shed-like affair, roofed with corrugated iron, and it seemed to us as if broken timbers and pieces of sheet metal were raining down for a full minute after the blast went off.

The shock to everything in the vicinity was, of course, tremendous, and the stout old shaft-house itself rocked and swayed like a tree in a hurricane. But the walls still stood intact, and when we got up and peeped through a hole which a piece of the flying scrap had torn in the door, we could see what we had done. It was a plenty. The blacksmith shop had disappeared, leaving nothing but a scattering of wreckage. The heavy anvil had been thrown from its block and the forge looked as if a giant had kicked it. Out by the boiler-shed a rack of cordwood had been toppled over and under it a man was struggling to free himself. When he saw the imprisoned enemy that mild-mannered, soft-spoken old soldier that I was shut up with would have opened the door and shot the struggler if I hadn't stopped him.

This blowing up of the shop settled the shower-bath business for us definitely. With the impediment out of the way we had a clear view on this third side; could command the row of miners' cabins, as well as the boilers in their open shed. When I got through persuading Daddy Hiram that we couldn't afford to murder the wounded, the fellow who had been wrestling with the woodpile had made his exit and there was nobody in sight. Shortly afterward a bullet, fired from somewhere in the forest background, whanged upon our roof, and there were several to follow; but aside from punching a few more holes in the iron they did no harm.

"Looks like the 'Hercules' is the one thing they're most skeered of," said Daddy, with his queer little stuttering chuckle. "Now maybe they'll leave us have time to get ourselves dried out a mite."

Totting up the results of the shower-bath we'd had, a bread famine promised to be the worst of them. The few cans of beans, tomatoes and peaches—the campers' standbys—were unhurt, of course, and the muddled bacon could be washed with water drawn from the flooded shaft. But the flour in its sack was merely a blob of paste and was beyond redemption and the cornmeal was the same. In view of the results I wondered if Bullerton hadn't shrewdly calculated upon washing our commissary out of existence when he planned his overgrown lawnsprinkler. But maybe that was giving him credit for more ingenuity than he really had.

Through what remained of the afternoon the rifle firing continued, coming sometimes from one angle and sometimes from another, but always cannily from a safe distance and always under cover of the surrounding forest.

Daddy Hiram, grimly optimistic, extracted a swallow or so of encouragement out of the persistent pot-shooting.

"Dunno as you've ever noticed it, Stannie, but if you'll only let a hog alone long enough he'll shove himself under the bob-wire fence far enough to get caught," he said. "Charley Bullerton, now; he's plum' forgot that 'Tropla's less 'n five miles away and that sound carries mighty long distances in these mountains in clear weather."

"What difference does that make?" I asked.

"It may make a heap o' difference. Looks to me like somebody—Buddy Fuller, 'r Jim Haggerty, the section boss, 'r some o' 'em down yonder 'd begin a wonderin' after a spell, what in tarnation all this here blastin' and rifle-poppin' up on old Cinnabar is a p'intin' at and come and see."

"Do you think the racket will carry that far?"

"It sure will. One night afore 'Tropla had gone as dead as she is now, a bunch o' cowpunch's got into an argument at Blue-nose Bill's place and we heard the crackin' and poppin' up here—Jeannie and me—like it was just over yonder in Greaser gulch."

"Well?" said I, "if your nephew or any of the others hear it, what then?"

As I asked the question one of the low-aimed shots tore through the side of the building, struck the iron frame of the hoist, flattened itself and dropped into the old man's lap. Picking up the hot bit of lead to dandle it from hand to hand he went on much as if he were firing at a target. "Curiosity killed the cat, Stannie, son. You let some one o' the folks down yonder in 'Tropla say, 'By gosh, I wonder what all that shootin' is for' and the next thing you know, somebody'll be mogglin' up here to find out."

Along about dusk some member of the besieging party tried to make a reconnaissance. I happened to be keeping the lookout on the cabin side of our fortress and saw a man dodging among the pines back of the house. When I reported to Daddy he took a snap shot at the place I pointed out to him and there was a wild yell and a stir in the young pines as though a hog were galloping through them.

"Just to let 'em know that we're still alive and kickin'," said the old man, with another of his quavery chuckles. "I reckon maybe that's what they was aimin' to find out."

Possibly it was. At all events, the rifle fire stopped with the coming of darkness, and as we faced our second night of defense we had plenty of time to sit around and think and speculate upon what the outcome was going to be.

Taking it all in all, it was the fantastic humor of the thing that hit me hardest. Six short weeks earlier people at home had been calling me all the hard names that fall to the lot of the idle ne'er-do-well; a young chap with enough inheritance money to keep him in ties and shoes and shirts and to buy gas for his car—though that last asked for a good bit on the rising cost of gasoline—and not enough to make life, or anything connected therewith, very much worth while.

SCHWAB SAYS TARIFF POLICY IS HURTFUL

Calls for a Law That Will Protect the American Worker from Low Wages of Other Nations

Washington—At the morning session of the special tariff convention under the auspices of the National Association of Manufacturers a letter was read from Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, in which he said: "Today we are confronted with a basic weakness in our tariff policy which is affecting, injuriously, the whole industrial fabric of the nation. Fluctuations in foreign exchange are playing havoc with wages, prices and orders, because our present tariff laws were framed at a time when foreign moneys were normal; they are today actually inoperative as far as protecting labor and industry or yielding revenue are concerned."

"Two examples will suffice to illustrate and prove these statements.

"An ounce of gold today in the United States pays the American worker for 17.22 hours of labor as against 50.16 hours in Great Britain, 95.5 hours in Japan, 117.31 hours in France, and 201.55 hours in Germany. Last year Congress passed a bill restricting immigration to protect the American worker from the millions of foreigners who would have flooded our labor markets and caused a panic in wages. But what advantage is there today to the American worker to have restricted immigration, if, through defects in our tariff, the products of these millions of men and women abroad are now glutting our markets and forcing millions of workers out of their positions? What better employment insurance could we have than a tariff law which insures the American worker his job in competition with the workmen of the world?

"In 1915 it required the work of 5,000 men for one day to make 1,000 tons of steel rails. Let us suppose that today an American railroad placed an order for 50,000 tons of rails in Belgium, Germany or England, because these rails might be bought for less money abroad than at home. This would mean that five thousand men in our own country would be idle for fifty days. It would mean that several thousand employes of our railroads would have less work, because the railroads would be deprived of hauling these rails, and the raw materials, such as coal, coke, iron, etc., which comes from the mines to the mills. It would mean that thousands of miners would have less work if the product of their labor would not be used by the mills. It would mean that the workers of the mines, mills and railroads would have less money to spend for the necessities of life with the baker, the grocer, or the retailer. This tendency to buy abroad at the expense of our own country is short sighted economy."
